History comes alive
in Rangeview

Rangeview Library District's "Living History" series continues Saturday with the depiction of Aunt Clara Brown, an ex-slave who joined the gold rush in the Rocky Mountains.

Brown, who came to the state in 1859 and became a figure in Central City and Denver, will be portrayed by Opalanga Pugh. Pugh is a member of the Chautauqua Speakers Bureau of the Colorado Endowment for the Humanities, a group dedicated to bringing historical characters to life.

The event will begin at 2 p.m. at the Perl Mack branch, 7611 Hilltop Circle. For more information, call 303-428-5376.
